Many children are able to swallow tablets or capsules and may prefer a solid dose form; involving the child and parents in choosing the formulation is helpful. When a prescription for a liquid oral preparation is written and the dose ordered is smaller than 5 mL an oral syringe will be supplied. Parents should be advised not to add any medicines to the infant’s feed, since the drug may interact with the milk or other liquid in it; moreover the ingested dosage may be reduced if the child ...
