The World Axis was a cosmological model created after the dramatic changes to the nature of the multiverse caused by the Spellplague of 1385 DR, and quickly became the most widely accepted model during the late years of the 14 th century DR and for most of the 15 th century. This structure, which resembled a sphere split into two axes—hence the name—resulted from the Spellplague and its effects upon the local multiverse, which included the untethering of the astral dominions and the ...

They are all examples of a belief in the axis mundi - a perceived center of the world, where Heaven and Earth are connected. This concept is also known by other names, including the 'world tree', the 'world pillar', and the 'cosmic axis'. Since ancient times, many cultures have held the view of their homeland as the center of the world, as it was the center of their known universe.

The Axis powers, also known as "Rome-Berlin-Tokyo Axis" was a military alliance that fought in World War II against the Allies. The Axis powers agreed on their opposition to the Allies, but did not completely coordinate their activity. The Axis grew out of the diplomatic efforts of Germany, Italy, and Japan to secure their own specific expansionist interests in the mid-1930s. The first step ...

Earth is not a perfect sphere. When it rotates on its spin axis -- an imaginary line that passes through the North and South Poles -- it drifts and wobbles. These spin-axis movements are scientifically referred to as "polar motion." Measurements for the 20th century show that the spin axis drifted about 4 inches (10 centimeters) per year.
