The energy of either the system or surroundings can take many forms: thermal (heat), radiant (light), chemical, mechanical, electrical. But all of these forms of energy can be viewed in terms of equivalent amounts of kinetic energy (KE), energy of motion) and potential energy (PE), energy of position or composition). Thus, the total ...

A chemical reaction involves the breaking of bonds in the reactants and the forming of bonds in the products. It takes energy to break bonds. Energy is released when bonds are formed. If a reaction is endothermic, it takes more energy to break the bonds of the reactants than is released when the bonds of the products are formed.

A good introduction to chemistry worksheet should include the basics of chemical reactions. The worksheet can be a workbook that you use in class. It can also be a chart that you use on your own. A chemical reaction is any of many different things that happen when two substances combine to create a third.

Introduction to Chemical Reactions Worksheet

In chemical reactions where the products have a higher energy than the reactants, the reactants must absorb energy from their environment to react. These reactions are endothermic and can be represented by an energy-level diagram like the one shown in Figure $\backslash(\backslash\text{PageIndex}\{2\}\backslash)$.
