As opposed to the 'law of Geneva', the 'law of the Hague' is a colloquial term that refers to a body of law mainly dealing with rules of conduct of hostilities and establishing limitations or prohibitions of specific means and methods of warfare. The term derives its name from the Hague Conventions of 1899 and 1907. It comprises rules protecting persons who are not in the power of a party to the conflict.

The Hague Conventions of 1899 and 1907 are a series of international treaties and declarations negotiated at two international peace conferences at The Hague in the Netherlands. Along with the Geneva Conventions, the Hague Conventions were among the first formal statements of the laws of war and war crimes in the body of secular international law. A third conference was planned for 1914 and later rescheduled for 1915, but it did not take place due to the start of World War I.
